JOY COMES TO WOODS DWELLERS

Windfall Is Roof—Mrs. Sutter Happy Despite Mosquitoes Luring Carb.

(Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.)

HOWEBROOK, Me., May 25.—"Just a love nest cozy and warm, Like a turtle dove nest down on the farm, A veranda with some sort of clinging vine, And a kitchen where the rambler roses burn; Then a small room, with a tea set of blue, Best of all rooms, dream room for two, Better than a palace with a gilded dome, Is a love nest you can call home." The whole conception of wedded happiness as conceived by one of America's best known musical comedy writers set all Boston humming and whistling two years ago. Today a Cosmopolitan News Service reporter swinging along through the untraced wilderness fifteen miles from here and the nearest railroad track heard the well remembered words sung in a high soprano voice.

Regular Love Nest. It was Mrs. Margaret Sutter, the modern Eve who with her husband is living the primitive life in the wilderness without clothes, weapons, food or fire. She sang just as the birds sing when they awaken in the clear morning air from sheer blitheness of spirit. Despite the hardships of a life in which the Sutters are pitting their brains and skill against the relentless forces of nature, Mrs. Sutter was happy.

And when the reporter fought his way through the entangling underbrush and burst into a little clearing, he understood, too, why she sang. For there facing across a wide panorama of rolling green land, he found the Sutter love nest. There were no rambling roses or tea sets and the dream room was also the kitchen and the dining room, too, but it was a love nest if there ever was one.

Mrs. Sutter made a charming, if unconventional hostess. She was not clad in the approved morning costume. Indeed, her sole garment was a skirt of birch that had a bad habit of not staying, but she was completely at ease and very proud of her new home.

The hut is not yet completed, but it has some semblance of a domicile and is proof against the attacks of wild beasts and wilder insects which are thirsting for the blood of the unwary traveler. In building the love nest, Mrs. Sutter utilized a windfall of broken tree trunks and piled them against the side of the hill. In front are two tall spruce trees growing together.

Fine Smoke Screen. The opening between these trees constitutes the doorway to the unusual love nest. Between the trees Mr. Sutter has built a stone fireplace and the visitor must step over the flames and smoke to enter the hut. Inside the semi-darkness is at first alarming, but afterward is a pleasant relief to the glare of the sunlight outside. A thin curtain of smoke rises from the fireplace and provides an effectual screen to the ravenous insects.

The hut is about ten feet long and seven feet wide. It is approximately five feet high on one end and four feet on the other. It is built in a little grove of spruce trees and is almost invisible fifty yards away. Outside the hut are the tree trunks and boughs have been piled until the hut is nearly rainproof.

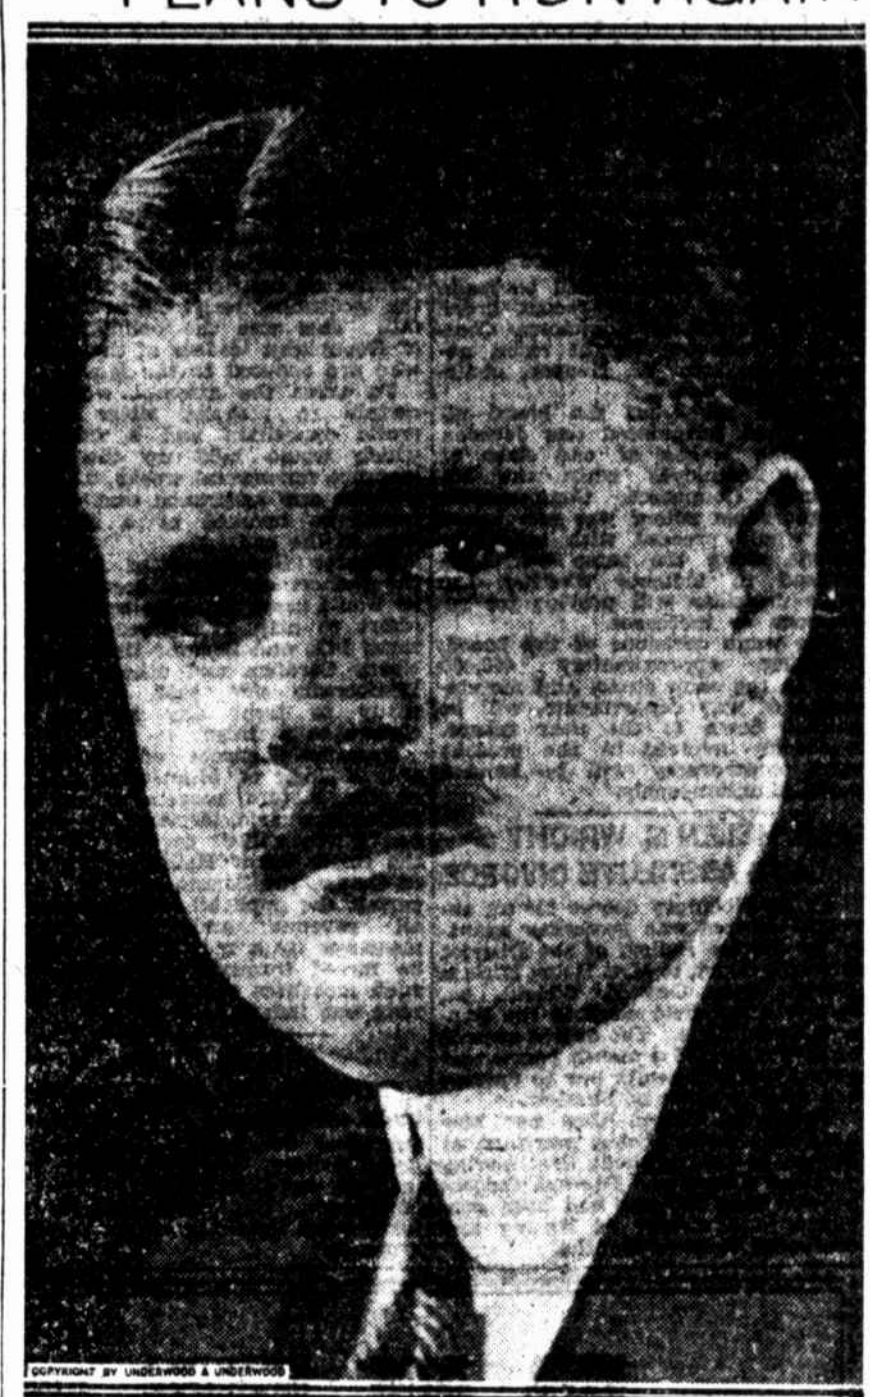

The Sutter love nest is built on high ground and looks out across the deep forest. Nearby is a water hole, where a mountain spring bubbles to the surface. Each night and morning the deer come to drink at this watering place, and the Sutters can lie in their home and watch the graceful animals quench their thirst. Spring has been very backward up in this section of the country. The thermometer drops with the sun. Old residents say they do not remember so cold a season.

The one-piece bathing suits worn at beach resorts, however, are substantial creations compared to the flimsy bit of birch bark that girdles Mrs. Sutter. Her bobbed hair is always sun washed and her cheeks have taken on the ruddy glow of perfect health. In spite of the insufficient food, Mrs. Sutter has certainly benefited by her venture in the open.

That the Sutters are hungry goes without saying. However, they are certain that luck will be able to catch some animals within the next few days. Meanwhile, they can catch trout that swarm in the little brooks here and cook them in some way. If necessary, they can eat the trout raw, Mr. Sutter says. He has adopted a novel method of catching the elusive fish which calls for a vast amount of patience. The method is simply to lie on his stomach at the foot of some rapid and wait for the trout to put in an appearance. When they do appear, Mr. Sutter poises a fork stick in his hand and waits for Mr. Trout to get in the proper position. Then he shoots the forked stick down over the trout's head and kills him. It sounds easy but Sutter put in three hours Monday on his stomach in water the temperature of ice water and caught one little trout about six inches long.

He claims that he will be able to

AUTO TAG WAR CONTINUED BY VA. AUTHORITIES

More Residents With Only D. C. Tags Summoned to Appear in Court.

CLARENDON, Va., May 25.—Regardless of whether the District of Columbia begins an auto license tag war on Virginia motorists, Arlington county officials will continue to arrest all drivers with District tags who live in this vicinity.

Sheriff Clements says if persons with Virginia tags are using them illegally in the District they should be apprehended by the same methods he is using here, and that he will insist District residents who come here for the summer obtain a Virginia tag.

More than twenty motorists were ordered to appear before Judge William C. Cloth yesterday, and several more were stopped and summoned this morning.

County Engineer Garrett and Superintendent of Schools Kemp, who are both in Garfield Hospital following minor operations, are reported as resting comfortably. It is expected both will return to their homes early next week.

More than 300 persons attended the lawn fête given by the young men's class of the Baptist Church last night.

Fred Scheele has commenced preparations to move the old waiting room of the Washington and Virginia railway station to his property about 100 yards east on Wilson boulevard. Construction of the new Clarendon Trust Company building will be started on the site as soon as the waiting room is taken away.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Green has announced that May 21 is the last day on which income taxes can be filed. The commissioner points out that persons failing to comply with the law are liable to fine and imprisonment. The return has no connection with the Federal income tax, but is a State tax.

make a fishhook from the trout's backbone and a stout line from the fibers inside a cedar tree, and then catch all the fish he wants.

Tonight the Cosmopolitan News Service photographer will crouch in the underbrush and try for pictures of the deer and moose. If he is successful he will get that rarest of prizes, a picture of wild animals in their native haunts.

Mr. Sutter believes he can kill some of the animals that come to drink at the watering hole, but he hasn't had time to make weapons with which to cope with them. Since the Sutters entered the woods on Saturday morning they have lived principally on roots and grasses, helped out by the flesh of one rabbit and a partridge.

HARDING GIVES DRUG TRAFFIC ITS DEATH BLOW

Signs Narcotics Bill Sponsored By Hearst Newspapers Today.

By MILDRED MORRIS.
Cosmopolitan News Service.

The Jones-Miller anti-narcotic bill, fostered and promoted by the Hearst newspapers and the most drastic preventive measure adopted by any country in the world dealing with the manufacture and distribution of opium and other life-sapping drugs, became the law of the land today through the signature of President Harding.

Immediate steps will be taken to carry out the provisions of the new law which strikes a death blow at the illicit drug traffic, it was announced.

The Federal narcotic control board to be composed of Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Commerce Hoover will organize with powers to control the sweeping program provided by the law to regulate the manufacture of narcotics for medicinal purposes only, and prevent the shipment of drugs to and from any country which does not co-operate in suppressing the vice.

Millions of lives will be saved from ruin and the country protected from the menace of "dope" through the new law, jurists, law officers and health experts declare.

May Call World Council. The calling of a world council to arrange for controlling the production, manufacture and sale of narcotics in other countries is being considered by Federal authorities as the next step in the fight to stamp out the "dope" evil throughout the world.

The measure, which became a law today, increases the penalty imposed on illicit drug dealers and importers to ten years' imprisonment and a fine of $5,000.

In addition to a Federal narcotic control bill, it further provides: Deportation of alien offenders as undesirable aliens.

Control of drug shipments by means of the international opium convention of 1912, commonly known as The Hague convention.

The "dope" habit has been spreading through the United States with alarming rapidity, and like a sweeping plague, has left no class of society untouched. Fifth avenue and the East Side alike have felt its ravages, and so it has been in other cities—the highest class as well as the lowest has been held in the clutches of the evil.

U. S. Greatest User. Today America, of all nations, is the greatest user of opium and its derivatives. It is estimated that there are now in the United States 5,000,000 drug addicts.

This country has imported ten times more crude opium than Germany, France and Italy combined. The new law will end all this, the experts declare.

FACTORS BEHIND RECOGNITION OF MEXICO SHOWN

Foremost Banker Explains Viewpoint Beyond Border.

By JOHN C. KLEIN.
Cosmopolitan News Service.

NEW YORK, May 25.—"The fear of possible intervention by the United States and the failure of the American Government to recognize President Obregon's administration, are the chief factors in the resumption of better commercial relations between the two countries and the consequent increase in trade which 'without question' would follow, Eduardo N. Yturbe, president of the Bank of Commerce and Industry of Mexico, said today.

"The Mexican government, I think, feels that the United States should not demand guarantees before recognizing the Mexican government, as this implies doubt in the good faith of Mexico as a sovereign state," he explained. "I am quite confident that following recognition, Mexico would give the American Government all guarantees that could be reasonably expected."

Mr. Yturbe, who represents important American financial interests in Mexico, is here to confer with his principals in view of the conference between Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., and other members of the international committee of bankers on Mexico, and Adolfo de La Huerta, finance minister of Mexico, and other Mexican financiers on certain propositions that have been made to the Mexican government. Chief of these is the acceptance by the Obregon administration of the so-called Victoriano Huerta debt.

Mexican Leader. Mr. Yturbe, who resided in the United States for five years and is thoroughly informed on conditions in this country, is one of the most important figures in the Mexican banking world. He is well known in Wall Street and the banking district, where his views on Mexican financial affairs are given much weight.

During the first influenza epidemic, Mr. Himes organized an emergency hospital. With his own car he hauled many patients to the hospital.

In 1920 he became a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress. He received a majority of 15,000 votes at the general election.

As a member of the Patent Committee of the House, Mr. Himes had much to do with the passage of the Patent Office salary bill over the protest of House leaders.

Mr. Himes was active in opposition of the attempt to reduce the personnel of the navy below the ratio as fixed by the arms limitation conference.

In addition to being a member of the Patent Committee, Mr. Himes is a member of the Committee on Reform in the Civil Service and the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Labor.

GARY FAVORS SALES TAX TO PAY NET BONUS

It is made necessary for lack of ready money on account of taxation. "Former soldiers, like all others, need opportunity to work in any and all lines of employment and, to continuously furnish this chance courage and capital should be given to industry. The load of taxation ought to be lightened, not increased. Excessive taxation is to be avoided and collected in proportion to the benefit derived and the ability to pay."

Sales Tax Feasible. "The fairest method of taxation is found in the sales tax, so called. It is the most easily, cheaply, and certain collected. It has been found in other countries to be practicable, satisfactory, and successful. Its tendency is to make persons more economical and saving."

"The sales tax is just because it leaves to everyone the opportunity to decide what the amount shall be over and above actual necessity. It is less difficult to collect large amounts and works less hardship to honest people because it is so widely distributed. A cent each to twenty men is twice as much as 10 cents to one man. Under the present income tax laws, the cost of collection is unreasonably large and many who are able to pay escape."

"For the good of all the people as a net result a sales tax is desirable. I verily believe with a fair sales tax business would be better, the country would be more prosperous, individual opportunity increased, and every one made happier. Every plan which is just and applies in due proportion to all the people, in benefits or obligations, is likely to be the most satisfactory and to build up the nation on a sound and safe foundation. Those who have read with open and candid minds the many very able articles on this subject which have appeared in the newspapers must be convinced of the logic and fairness of this form of taxation."

"It is hardly necessary, if proper, to refer to possible legislation relating to the payment or cancellation of the sums due our country by foreign nations. For the good of both creditor and debtor all honest debts should be paid, if possible, though a generous and humane creditor will always be liberal in extending the date of payment in times of urgency."

Judge Gary's statement, in brief, on farm and labor organizations, follows:

Concedes Labor Right. "To permit labor associations or farmer organizations to do, as the result of combination, things that are claimed to be beneficial to them which are denied to others is to create classes, to favor some of them and to injure the whole body politic. It tends to array class against class and it adds to the cost of production. And he it remembered the general purchasing public in the end must pay the bills. I willingly admit as to labor, toward which no one has better intentions than I, that in the long past, as the result of class intolerance, it was not justly treated. Also, I know by experience and otherwise that the farmers, the most essential element of our national life, have not uniformly received adequate financial returns on their investment and labor."

"If it is necessary, in order to protect workmen against imposition, to permit them to organize into organizations and thus act collectively, let it be done under and by virtue of the general laws, subject in management to Governmental investigation and supervision and control against wrong, oppression, and violence. Let them account, under direction of the

Mrs. Slack was first married to Ralph Dittenbaugh, in 1903, and got a divorce from him in November, 1908. In a short time she became the wife of Harry A. Crewe. This match also ended unhappily, and in December, 1909, she again became free. Her next matrimonial adventure came when she married William H. Roland, a prominent attorney. Several years later Roland died. He left an estate valued at $350,000.

Her fourth husband was Dr. Martin B. Royer, whom she divorced in 1920.

HARDING ASKED TO CALL WORLD MEET ON DRUGS

Senator McNary Introduces Resolution Asking International Parley.

A resolution asking President Harding to call an international conference to enact a world code for suppression of narcotic drugs was introduced in the Senate today by Senator McNary (Rep.) of Oregon.

The purpose of the conference, McNary said, would be to draft uniform regulations to prevent the illegal use, sale and smuggling of "dope" from one country to another.

"Since liquor was banished in the United States, there has been a growing demand for drugs," said McNary. "The situation is a menacing evil and the conference I propose would be called to adopt uniform regulations so that drug-traders might not evade the laws of any one country by hiding beneath immunity granted in some other country. A world code would go to the root of the evil."

The resolution set forth that Congress recently enacted legislation to prohibit importation and exportation of drugs and pointed out the necessity for similar action by other and neighboring countries.

"Be it therefore resolved," the resolution read, "That the President be requested to propose to the powers who ratified the International Opium convention and to other interested governments that an international conference be convened to discuss problems relating to and to propose the adoption of uniform laws and effective measures for the further suppression and elimination of the use of opium, cocaine, heroin, or any salt, derivative or preparation thereof, except for medical and legitimate purposes."
